Announcing

George Fox

Regional accreditation is a long-sought Promised Land, and toward which the George Fox community has journeyed for many years. The formal work in preparation has gone on without abatement from August, 1954 until December 2, 1959, when at Spokane the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools accepted the report of the Higher Commission in our behalf. Any and all who have been engaged in the process know of the seriousness of the endeavor, the involvement by so many hundreds of people--both within the school itself and also among a great roster of churchmen and alumni--, and the unrelenting pressures to produce a situation of excellence in academic matters, greater budgets, and the achievement of goals within the immediate family. It should be known that any school so committed--and ours is no exception--must show itself to be very fine even before its recognition. What have the alumni achieved? What are the records? What victories have been won over the many decades?

Accreditation

What is the program and what is going on year by year? For accreditation is not a "fighting chance" to do better, it is recognition for what is and has been.

Accreditation has proved to be a climate of liberation. It is making it possible to do what we wish to do in achieving personnel, in recruiting students, in accepting our role in the centers of learning, in producing a high morale among our faculty and students and pride among our alumni and constituents.

It is gratifying to note the acceptance of our position as the evangelical Quaker college of the West. We thank our Great God for His Providence. We humbly submit to Christ, the Great Teacher, committing ourselves to His leadership and with the firm resolve to improve ourselves with every student generation. It is for us to offer a better Christian education to more students in order to make our contribution to society the greater by the year.

Dedication

To you, Mr. Isaac Smith:

For your many hours of self-sacrifice to the students of George Fox College in various ways, from fixing a leak in the middle of the night to offering your home as a place where students feel free to come to you for guidance and help.

Your life has been a real testimony and a guide rule for students to follow.

We take this opportunity to thank you and to express the appreciation of each and every student of George Fox College by dedicating the 1960 L'AMI to you!

President Ross

The story is told of a little girl who was viewing the wonders of the New York skyline from a ferry for the first time, and she exclaimed to her father: "Daddy, I can look farther than my eyes can see!" I am of the opinion that one of the great challenges to be taken in higher education is to see farther than one's eyes can take one, and I believe that many of our students are accepting such a challenge.

When one is confronted with the demands and the opportunities of the greater vision, there may be a temptation to withdraw into the shell of complacency or the hole of continued ignorance, and yet but one new insight from the pen of a stimulating writer or one word of encouragement from the voice of a concerned and imaginative teacher can open the new door. Those experiences are taking place on the campus of George Fox in an ever-widening circle. Let all of us who look back upon this year recall that this was the year when regional accreditation was granted, when five scholars were involved in "Intensified Studies," when Pi Gamma Sigma grew to eleven members, when our boys took first in the Willamette Christian College League, the choir did Handel's Messiah and a tour, the drama people produced "The Big Fisherman," the science hall was remodelled, it rained all spring, Professor Mills lectured on "Revelation, the Center of Learning," Mr. Mardock and Mr. Kirk spoke in the Christian emphases, both James Cheng of Formosa and "Pastor" Kim of Korea graduated, Ron Worden made summa cum laude, and commencement was held in the senior rose garden. What a year!

Dean
Williams

According to Nicholas Murray Butler there are "five tests of the evidence of education--correctness and precision in the use of the mother tongue; refined and gentle manners, the result of fixed habits of thought and action; sound standards of appreciation of beauty and of worth, and a character based on those standards; power and habit of reflection; efficiency or the power to do."

A liberal arts education is that which enables students to pass these tests of evidence. Knowledge in the areas of the humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences comprise the basic core of the curriculum at George Fox College.

Almost two thousand years ago Jesus in speaking to a multitude of people stressed the point which is basic to our philosophy of education, "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesseth." We desire that our students learn to live abundantly. To do this each must possess the facility of communication, Christian ethics and manners, disciplined control of his powers of thought and action, an appreciation of beauty around him in nature and in other people, and Christian character. Mere specialization in some vocational endeavor does not make one an educated person. Each of us reaps what he has sown. How important that we sow in our college education that seed which will produce a full life of useful endeavor and contentment which is found in being appreciative of God's marvelous creation.

Freshmen

The class of '63 started the year off by appearing at initiation in all sorts of strange attire. In April the class gave the Sophomores a party in return for the initiation party the Sophomores gave the Freshmen at the first of the school year. The two classes carefully fitted themselves into several cars and a Volkswagon and went to McMinnville for a swimming party. After soaking all the fungus loose, the class returned to Newberg church basement for the usual food, fun, and fellowship, and ended the time with a short devotional.

MARIE SCHMELZER
Secretary

The class finished up right with a hay-rack ride to Winter's place on Friday night June 4. The attractions there were many, ranging from hot dogs roasted on a lawn rake over an open fire and home made ice cream to evasive bull frogs in the pond. Devotions were the climax of the time of fellowship.

SYNOPSIS

When Fara's mother--an Arabian princess once married to Herod then discarded by him for another woman--dies, Fara secretly departs to Galilee to revenge the wrong. Prince Voldi, in love with Fara, searches long for her, his only clue to her plans a long braid of hair which she cut off to disguise herself as a camel boy. Taken into the house of Simon, her disguise is soon discovered.

Talk of Jesus' being the Messiah is spread throughout Galilee, and Johnny, believing on Him, is scorned by Simon as being a fool. But slowly, through glimpses of Christ in His teaching and miracles, the household of Simon, Fara, and Voldi acknowledge Jesus as the Son of God.

"Won't you come with us Simon?"

"Hannah, have you seen the crowds outside?"

"What brings you to my home, old friend?"

"Guard, lead him out."

Athletics

Football

The 1959 football season was one of the better ones for George Fox as the Quakers won two of the six games on a very tough schedule. For the second year, the Quakers played a majority of their games against the members of the powerful Washington Junior College League, playing Lower Columbia twice and Columbia Basin and Greys Harbor each once.

The Quaker's two wins were against Oregon College of Education teams. On October 10, the team defeated OCE's junior varsity, 18-0; on Homecoming they defeated the Wolves' varsity minus the first twelve players by a score of 25-19.

Three seniors finished out their college football careers. They were Paul Cammack, regular center, and Cordell Tittle and Willis Green, tackles. Cammack and Tittle lettered four years in the sport and Green three.

The offensive play that clicked the most was the pass. Bob Reeves, freshman quarterback, completed 65% of his passing attempts. His principal receivers were ends Howard Crow and Chuck Newkirk, and halfback Maurice Ray.

The Quakers scored eight touchdowns during the season. Five were pass plays with Ray receiving three and Crow and Newkirk each one. Dave Hoskins and Newkirk each scored on end runs, and the final touchdown came on an interception by LoWayne Brewer. The outstanding touchdown play of the season was a pitchout pass from Reeves to Ray, good for 80 yards. This touchdown broke the 19-all tie in the fourth quarter of the Homecoming game with OCE, making the Quakers the victors.

Brewer's seven interceptions were a noteworthy defensive achievement. The spirit-building utility man saw duty at every backfield position, both offensively and defensively.

Linemen Gary Brown and Gil Rinard were real workhorses, both in the games and in their consistency in attending practice.

Steve Wilhite, who played fullback, tackle, or linebacker, was also a real bulwark.

Each team member could be mentioned for some contribution to the season either for his inspired playing, consistency in attending practice, willpower to come back and win after a dismal previous season, or, most of all, the real football spirit it took to go against bigger, better prepared opponents and play until the final gun just as courageously, no matter what the odds mounted against him.

Head coach for the season was Carl Carpenter, who, in addition to his coaching and scheduling games, recruited several of the players on the squad during the previous summer. This he did on his own.

He also recruited a young man who proved a real addition to the squad, namely line coach Wendell Scott. "Scotty", who found out how much he was appreciated by a clothes-on involuntary shower after the Homecoming game, is a young businessman with a real love for the sport. This he demonstrated by working with the line at every practice and taking his car to every game on a gratis basis. And the linemen will remember he expected every man to go his hardest, whether it was calisthenics, drill, scrimmage, or a game.

Although the Quaker basketball team started out rather slowly, they improved rapidly and completed the season with a record of 16 wins against 10 losses. Entered in both the Metropolitan League and the new Willamette Christian College Conference league, the Quakers placed second and first respectively.

Climaxing the season was the annual George Fox Invitational Tourney. In the first round of play, the Quakers rolled over Judson Baptist with a score of 68 to 42. The next opponent, Bible Standard College, went down with an 82 to 48 score, and in the final game, George Fox defeated Concordia 76 to 64 to win the championship and another trophy.

Three Quakers were picked on the all-tournament team, which is selected by coaches of visiting teams. Howard Crow received the most votes, making him the outstanding player of the tournament. Bob Poet, a transfer from Seattle Pacific College, received the second highest vote, and Maurice ("Moree") Ray, the Quaker playmaker, received enough votes to place on the second team.

Leading the team through this season were veteran Howard Crow, and Bob Reeves. Playing only during the first semester, Reeves maintained an average of 20 points per game while Crow combined a 15 point average with an excellent rebounding record of 15 per game. In total points scored, Crow led with 387. Next was Reeves with 373, Moree Ray with 319, Bob Poet with 201, Ron Worden with 174, Damon Heinrich with 100, and Chuck Newkirk with 80 points.

Track

Although George Fox hosted the first Willamette Christian College Conference track meet, and had a good participant turnout, only two men worked out regularly at their track duties. George Fox scored third in the W. C. C. C. meet. Howard Crow placed first in both the shot and discus.
